REPORT.

CLASSMATES, — It is with considerable pleasure that I present the following report to you, for the reason that it is prepared almost entirely from material furnished directly by yourselves. With only two or three exceptions, I have heard from every member of the Class since the publication of the last report, and from all but a small number within a few weeks. This statement, of course, is to be confined to those graduated in 1872; for it will be found that the record of those who did not finish their course with the Class is very incomplete. I can only say that I have done my best to keep in communication with them, and shall be happy to hear directly or indirectly from any of them in the future. It is probable, however, that I have heard from all of them who value at all their connection with the Class. In addition to the facts furnished by you, I have in some cases given others which have come to my knowledge, and which their modesty or indifference led some to omit. I beg that, in the future, you will omit nothing that will make the report interesting.

The record is made to cover the whole time since graduation, for the reason that several of the Class have never received or have lost the Second Report, of which I have not copies enough left to supply the demand.

The Class would seem to be in a prosperous condition, judging from the number of marriages; and, by an easy computation from the figures furnished by this report, it will be found we shall all be married before the lapse of another three years. Meantime, I would refer the bachelors to the quotation made by Gambrill. The answers to the question, "Engaged?" in my circular in 1875, betrayed such over-assurance on the part of some members of the Class that I decided to omit it altogether this year. One answered then that he expected to be soon, and another said, "No, but shall be soon." I am afraid they were both disappointed, for neither of them appears among the Benedicts.

The past three years have been marked by the deaths of five members of the Class, — Kelman, Rand, and Darling in 1877, and G. H. Tower and Evarts in 1878, — making nine deaths which have occurred since graduation; a very large number, considering the smallness of the Class.

The Class Funds seem to me to be in a satisfactory condition, and we are able this year to have our Class Dinner at the expense of the income of the Class Fund; but I hope this will not delay the prompt payment of the instalments which are overdue. A statement of both Funds is given further on.

Hoping that you will keep me well informed in regard to yourselves in the future, and with the best wishes for your success, I am

Very truly yours,

A. L. Lincoln, Jr.,

Class Secretary.

*WILLIAM EVARTS. (The following sketch of his life was prepared, at the request of the Secretary, by C. H. Russell, Jr., G. H. Gould, and West:) —

William Evarts was born in New York City on the 3d of March, 1851. His father was the Hon. William M. Evarts, now Secretary of State of the United States. His mother's maiden name was Helen Wardner. He was also a great-grandson of Roger Sherman, of Connecticut, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Evarts was prepared for college at a private school kept by the Rev. Benjamin W. Dwight in the city of New York, and entered the class of 1871 at Yale College in the fall of 1867. He left there at the end of his Freshman year, and, after studying for a year with a private tutor in Cambridge, joined our class at the commencement of the Sophomore year. During his first year in college, he roomed in the Appian Way, and, during his Junior and Senior years, with West, at No. 23 Harvard Block and at No. 10 Holyoke House. He was a member of the Institute of 1770, the Δ. K. E., the A. D., and the Hasty Pudding Club.

After graduation, Evarts went into the office of Beebe & Brother, tea brokers, in New York City, to study the China business, in which he had determined to engage. He remained thus occupied until May, 1874, when he left for China, via Europe, to take the position of clerk in the house of Russell & Co., at Shanghai, where he was at the time of the last triennial report.

He became much interested in his business in China, to which he devoted himself very faithfully, but was taken ill in February, 1876, with a typhoid fever, from the results of which he never recovered, and by which his lungs were seriously affected. In December last, he was compelled to leave Shanghai on account of his ill health, and arrived at San Francisco in January. From there he went immediately to San Gabriel, in California. His condition at first seemed to improve, but about the first of April it became evident that he could not live long; and he was then brought home to the residence of his father in Washington. He lived for two weeks after his arrival there, and died on the 26th of April. He was buried at Windsor, Vt., on the 30th of the same month.

CORNELIUS CONWAY FELTON. Born at Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 2, 1851. During the fall of 1872, travelled in the West; and, on his return, studied at Cambridge; in the summer of 1873, went abroad, and remained a year; in the fall of 1874, entered the office of the Atlantic Mills Agency, Boston, where he remained till July, 1876; then experimented in sheep-raising for about a year in Virginia; in October, 1877, he sailed for Europe, and is now engaged in the study of philology and archæology at Athens, Greece; was married to Eunice W. Farley, of Cambridge, on Sept. 20, 1877.

CHARLES NEWTON FESSENDEN. Born at Fitchburg, Mass., May 15, 1846. Since graduation, has been engaged in teaching: the first year at De Veaux College, Suspension Bridge, N. Y.; for a short time at Newport, R. I.; and then as head master of Lake Forest Academy, Lake Forest, Ill. This last position he left to join Barnes in his "Higher School for Boys," at Chicago, Ill., in September, 1876, where he has since remained. Resides at 308 Chicago Avenue, Chicago.

ALFRED WITHINGTON FIELD. Born at Leominster, Mass., May 15, 1851. He writes as follows: "Assistant in Chemical Laboratory (in the College) from September, 1872, to June, 1875. In July, 1875, went to Germany on a Parker Fellowship, in order to study chemistry. Returned on account of incurable disease in December, 1875. Passed the following eight months at home in Leominster. In September, 1876, I was reappointed proctor, and also resumed work in the laboratory as private assistant to Prof. C. L. Jackson; and this position I still hold." Oct. 22, 1875, was chosen member of the German Chemical Society of Berlin. Resides at Cambridge.

HENRY MIDDLETON FISHER. Born at Philadelphia, Pa. May 29, 1851. In the fall of 1872, entered the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania; received the degree of M.D. March 12, 1875; his thesis with eight others was honorably mentioned on Commencement Day; was in Europe for about eight months in 1875; from January, 1876, to February, 1877, was a student in the Pathological Laboratory of the University above, and during part of the time was also Pupil Physician at the Philadelphia Lying-in Charity; from February, 1877, to August following, was a student in the Eye Laboratory of the same university; in September, 1877, was elected to serve as resident physician for sixteen months in the Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia, where he is at present. Is a member of the Pathological and Obstetrical Societies of Philadelphia, and also of the Pennsylvania Academy of Natural Sciences.

GEORGE FISKE. Born at Boston, Mass, Dec. 28, 1851. Immediately after graduation, went to England; entered Guy's Hospital, London, where he remained one term, studying medicine; was married to Johanna Euling, at London, Jan. 14, 1873; returned to this country in April, 1875, and remained here two years; then went to Vienna, but returned in a few weeks; in November, 1877, went to London, England, where, he writes, it is his intention to live for some length of time.

THOMAS FRENCH. Born at Clifton, Ohio, Jan. 15, 1848. Went abroad in July, 1872. He writes as follows, April 20, 1878: "Entered the University at Munich in October, where he attended lectures on Roman Law, German Literature, and History; at the end of that term, he decided to study science with a view to teaching, and chose Physics as his specialty; in pursuance of this plan, entered the Polytechnic School in Munich, still keeping up his connection with the University; in August, 1873, visited the Vienna Exposition, and after travelling in Switzerland and Italy returned again to Munich, and resumed his work. At the expiration of his third term in Munich, he went to Berlin, and spent one term at the University there; from October, 1874, till March, 1876, he studied at Heidelberg, where he received the degree of Ph.D.; after a short sojourn in Paris, returned to America in June, 1876; since September, 1876, has held the position of Assistant in Physics in the University of Pennsylvania." In March, 1876, he also received the degree of A.M. On Dec. 27, 1876, was married to Laura S. Hildreth, at Cambridge. Resides at Philadelphia.

WILLIAM CLIFFORD FRENCH. Born at Boston, May 24, 1849. Was in business with Leonard, Bundy, & Co., dealers in oils, from July, 1872, to February, 1877, when the firm was dissolved; since that time, has not been engaged in any business; was married to Carmen L. Bundy, at Cambridge, Jan. 7, 1873. Residence, 97 Newbury Street, Boston.

WILLIAM PRESCOTT FROST. Born at Kingston, N. H., Dec. 27, 1850. Was principal of Lewistown Academy, Lewistown, Pa., from September, 1872, to June, 1873; from August, 1873, to September, 1875, was a writer for the "San Francisco Bulletin;" in September, 1875, resigned his position on the "Bulletin," and accepted that of city editor of the "Daily Evening Post," which he still holds; was Secretary of the Harvard Club of San Francisco during 1877; was married to Belle Moodie, March 17, 1873; on March 26, 1874, Robert Lee Frost was born, and on June 26, 1876, Jeanie Florence Frost. Resides at San Francisco, Cal.

RICHARD A. GAMBRILL. Born at Baltimore, Md., Dec. 5, 1849. After graduation, went to Europe, where he remained till the fall of 1874, when he returned to Cambridge and entered the Law School; received the degree of LL. B. there in June, 1876. He writes from New York, May 27, 1878: "I am still a bachelor, not engaged, and have no children. Dr. Johnson's saying, 'that marriage has its pains, but celibacy has no pleasure,' I am inclined to think is a wise one, and should be seriously considered by all old bachelors. * ALFRED RAND. Was the son of Edward Turner and Frances Elizabeth (Blodgett) Rand; born at Charlestown, Mass., Aug. 27, 1851, where he always resided. Was fitted for college at the public schools, and entered with the class in 1868. In his biography in the Class Book, he speaks of his college course as having been remarkably free from difficulties or ill-health, and of his having been obliged to absent himself for only two days during the four years on account of sickness. He was a faithful student, always maintaining a good rank, and received honors in Physics and Chemistry when graduated. He was a member of the Everett Athenæum, the III Society, the Φ B K, and the Pierian Sodality. He chummed with O. H. Currier throughout the course. His studies were chosen with reference to the profession of medicine, which it was always his intention to follow; and in the fall after graduation he entered the Harvard Medical School, with which he was connected till January, 1875; in February, 1874, he received an appointment as surgeon's assistant at the U. S. Marine Hospital at Chelsea, where he remained until Jan. 1, 1875, still continuing his studies at the School. He had then received an appointment in the Massachusetts General Hospital, and on January 2 entered upon his duties; but he found he had been under too great a strain, and was obliged to give up altogether and to rest. Through the kindness of friends, he received the appointment as Census-taker, May 24, 1875, and was praised at the close of his labor for the faithful manner in which he had performed it. Jan. 1, 1876, he commenced a three months term of service as House Physician at the Lying-in Hospital at Boston. In July following, he went to Plymouth, Mass., as assistant to Dr. Williams, at the Seashore Home, — a Boston charity for poor, invalid children. In October, 1876, after a visit to the Centennial Exhibition, he entered the Medical School again, and in February, 1877, passed his examinations creditably, and was in high spirits at the prospect of being able to continue his studies successfully. But he soon after became depressed in spirits, and lost sleep. He consulted an eminent physician, and was advised to pursue his studies under Dr. Russell, in Winchendon, Mass.; but his mental condition was such he could not bear to leave his home. Dr. Tyler was consulted, and after two weeks pronounced him improved, and he himself felt so. On May 7, a letter came from Dr. Williams, inviting him in very complimentary terms to take charge of the Seashore Home once more during the coming summer. He was much elated, accepted the position, and visited Winn, our classmate, with a view to take up his studies again. The next day he complained of severe pain in his head, and that he had been unable to sleep during the night. The shock from the discovery of his condition was too much for his reason to bear. He became irresponsible, and put an end to his life by means of a small toy cannon which happened to be in his room, on the 9th day of May, 1877. On Commencement following, resolutions were presented by Winn, and passed by the Class, which were sent by the Secretary to his family, and entered in the Class Book. An account of his life since graduation, kindly furnished by his father, from which most of the facts above are taken, was read at the meeting.

JOSEPH RAWSON, Jr. Born at Cincinnati, Ohio, Dec. 18, 1850. Since graduation, has been in the pork business with J. Rawson & Son, Cincinnati, Ohio; on May 4, 1876, was married to Lucie Russell, at Cincinnati; on April 10, 1877, Martha Rawson was born. Resides at Clifton, Hamilton Co., Ohio.

*JAMES PAGE RICHARDSON. Was the son of Roswell M. Richardson, a wholesale grocer and lumber manufacturer of Portland, and Ann H. (Hapgood) Richardson, and was born Nov. 23, 1851, at Wells River, Vt.; since 1856, had lived at Portland; was fitted for college at the Portland High School, under A. P. Stone; during the Freshman and Sophomore years, he roomed with Barnes, the first year at No. 4 Main Street, the second in 52 Grays; the last two years of his course he roomed alone in 58 College House; was a member of the Everett Athenæum and Π Π Society. After graduation, he attended the University races at Springfield, and visited Montpelier, Vt., where he met with an accident while driving, which occasioned a severe mental shock; on his return home, he became ill with bilious fever, from which he had partially recovered, when a slight chill, August 27, brought on violent typhoid fever of cerebral form, of which he died Sept. 8, 1872. His purpose for life as far as formed was to go into his father's store to learn book-keeping till spring; then, after a summer in Europe, to return to the study and pursuit of law. Upon news of his death, a meeting of the Class was called, and resolutions adopted, which were sent to his family, and printed in the "Boston Advertiser" and "Portland Press," and which may be seen in the Class Book.

JOHN FRANKLIN RICHARDSON. Born at Fitchburg, Mass., May 10, 1848. Was in the wholesale hardware business in Chicago, for about two years after graduation; Jan. 1, 1875, became treasurer of the Fitchburg Scythe and Tool Manufacturing Co. The violent death, as he expresses it, of this company in the spring of 1876, left him without occupation until Jan. 1, 1877, when he became connected with the United States Customs Service, and located at Burlington, Vt., where he still is.

LAURENCE DANA RUMSEY. Born at Buffalo, 1850. Has been in business since graduation with the firm of A. Rumsey & Co., Buffalo, N. Y., of which he is a member; was married, Nov. 17, 1876, to Jennie Cary, at Buffalo; Dec. 9, 1877, Evelyn Rumsey was born. Resides at Buffalo, N. Y.

FLOYD WILLIAMS TOMKINS, Jr. Born at New York, N. Y., Feb. 7, 1850. After graduation, entered at once into study for the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church at the General Seminary in New York City. May 31, 1878, he writes as follows: "Graduated from the General Theological Seminary, New York City, in June, 1875. Was ordained to the Diaconate the same month at Trinity Church, New York City, by Bishop Potter; was married to Miss A. M. G. Cutter in St. Peter's Church, Cambridgeport, Mass., July 14, 1875; started for the West the same month, and in August began his ministerial duties at Pueblo, Colorado, as rector of St. Peter's Church. In April, 1877, he was called to the rectorship of St. Mark's Church, Cheyenne, Wyoming Territory, which call he accepted, and labored there until May, 1878, when he accepted a call to Kenosha, Wis., where he is now rector of St. Matthew's Church. Life has been uneventful. Found missionary labor hard and demanding constant self-denial; but the three years spent on the frontier were an excellent post-graduate course. A little girl was born in Pueblo, and died, and a little girl was born in Cheyenne, and is now living, named Sarah Graham. Was ordained to the priesthood in Pueblo, in February, 1876, by Bishop J. F. Spalding, D.D." He was Dean of the Convocation of Pueblo, Col., in September, 1876, and of the Convocation of Wyoming, in April, 1877.

CHARLEMAGNE TOWER, Jr. Born at Philadelphia, Pa., April 17, 1848. In September, 1872, went to Spain, and lived at Madrid, studying the Spanish language, until August, 1873; during his stay there, he was made attaché to the United States legation by General Sickles; on leaving Madrid, visited the Exposition at Vienna, and spent the following year in France, the greater part at Tours; after visiting Algiers, he went to Frankfort on the Main, where he remained till June, 1875, studying. He writes, May 28, 1878, as follows: "I left Frankfort on the Main in June, 1875, and met Henry St. John Smith at Brussels, by appointment. We travelled together through Denmark, Norway, and Sweden, and went to Russia, through which country we passed from St. Petersburg to the Black Sea, and visited, among other places of note, the Fair at Nijni-Novgorod, the cities of Moscow, Kief, Odessa, and went to the Crimea. From Russia we went to Constantinople, and from there went to the Plain of Troy, to Smyrna, and then to Greece. After spending some time in Athens, and in making a trip on horseback in the Peloponnesus, Smith and I parted company in October, at which time he started back to America. I went to Italy in November, and spent six weeks. I spent that winter (from December 15 to March 1) in Egypt, and went up the Nile into Nubia as far as the Second Cataract. On leaving Egypt, I went to Syria, and travelled there on horseback from Jaffa to Jerusalem, and from there to the Dead Sea, and then through Palestine to Damascus and to Baalbec. I left Syria by steamer from Beyrout at the end of April, 1876. I went again to Smyrna and to Athens; then back to Italy. In June, 1876, I left Italy to come home by way of Paris and London, and sailed from Liverpool for New York, where I arrived the 30th of June, 1876.

"In October, 1876, I registered myself as a student of law, and entered the office of William Henry Rawle, Esq., 710 Walnut Street, Philadelphia. I am still studying law, and expect to be admitted to practise at the Philadelphia bar in October, 1878." Is a member of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania.

* GEORGE HOMER TOWER. (For the following account, we are indebted to his brother, Mr. B. L. M. Tower.)

"George H. Tower was the son of George and Adeline (Lane) Tower. Born in Boston, Jan. 31, 1850; graduated at the Boston Public Latin School in 1868, and entered the college the same year. He was a member of the Everett Athenæum, of the Signet and O. K. Societies, and an editor of the 'Harvard Advocate.' He was also Class Odist.

"After graduation, he chose the profession of journalism, for which he had evinced a marked taste in college, and, acquiring a thorough knowledge of short-hand, became connected as reporter with the 'Boston Daily Globe,' occasionally contributing articles in prose and poetry to its columns.

"In the spring of 1877, he became associate editor of the 'Woonsocket Patriot,' a weekly and daily newspaper, published at Woonsocket, R. I., and devoted himself most assiduously to his work.

"His reading was large and varied. In addition to his acquaintance with the ancient languages, which he never dropped, he was thoroughly at home in the classics of the English, French, German, Italian, and Spanish languages, all of which he read with ease.

"Besides his labors in the editorial department, he contributed constantly to the columns of his paper both in prose and poetry.

"He was an enthusiastic lover of manly exercise, being of fine physique and powerful build; and the young men of Woonsocket owe their gymnasium mainly to his efforts.

"He was seized with typhoid fever late in March last, and, returning with difficulty to his home in Braintree, died, after an illness of two weeks, on April 15, 1878."

EUGENE TREADWELL. Born at New York, N. Y., April 25, 1851. In October, 1872, entered the Columbia College Law School, where he received the degree of LL.B. April 30, 1874; during the greater part of this time, was also a student in the office of Boardman & Boardman; then went abroad, returning in the fall; and in October, 1874, was admitted to the New York bar, and opened an office at 335 Broadway, New York City. He now writes: "Am still single, and pegging away at law." His office now is at 37 Park Row, New York.

ALANSON TUCKER, 2D. Born at Boston, Mass., April 20, 1848. During the first year after graduation, was in the Ocean (cotton) Mills, Newburyport, Mass.; since then, has been in business as commission merchant, and is now in the house of Upham, Tucker, & Co., 48 Franklin Street, Boston, in which city he also resides.

JOHN FREEMAN TUFTS. Born at New Albany, Nova Scotia, March 25, 1844. After graduation, received an appointment as proctor in the College, which position he filled for two years, at the same time teaching private pupils and studying for the degree of A.M., which he received in June, 1874; in August following, was appointed Professor of History in Acadia College, Wolfville, N. S., and Principal of the Collegiate Academy connected with that college, which positions he still holds; is a member of the Nova Scotia Historical Society. He published in 1873, through C. W. Sever, Cambridge, Mass., "Questions on History and Geography of Greece;" "Questions on History and Geography of Rome;" and "Questions on Modern and Physical Geography." He also published the latter, revised and enlarged, through A. & W. Mackinlay, Halifax, N. S. Resides at Wolfville.

SIDNEY FREDERIC TYLER. Born at Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 23, 1850. After graduation, spent about three years in Europe; returned in fall of 1875, and is now practising law at 206 South 5th Street, Philadelphia. Resides at 201 South 15th Street, in the same city.

EDWARD EMERSON WATERS. Born at Kingston, N. Y., Oct. 30, 1850. After graduation, entered the law office of Brown, Hall, & Vanderpoel, New York City, and at the same time the Columbia College Law School, where he received the degree of LL.B. in May, 1874; was admitted to the New York bar in October following, and began practice in December, 1874, at 25 Nassau Street, in the same city; is now practising at 120 Broadway, and resides at 309 Fifth Avenue. Is a member of the New York Law Institute; of the Union League Club; of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and of the New York Medico-Legal Society.

THOMAS FRANKLIN WATERS. Born at Salem, Mass., April 12, 1851. Entered the Theological Seminary, Andover, Mass., in September, 1872, where he remained till July, 1875; from August, 1875, to March, 1878, was acting Pastor with the Congregational Church at Edgartown, Martha's Vineyard; at present is without settlement. Resides at 4 Buffum Street, Salem, Mass.

* CHARLES MILTON WEED. For the facts concerning Weed since graduation, we are indebted to G. H. Gould. Born May 11, 1849, in Stamford, Conn.; his father is Charles Albert Weed, formerly proprietor and publisher of the "New Orleans Times," a paper founded by him; his mother's maiden name was Abigail Lounsberry. Weed received his final preparation for college at Mr. Fay's school in Newport, R. I. During the Freshman and Sophomore years, he roomed with Clarence Robinson, the first year in Stoughton 19, the second in Massachusetts 12; the last two years of his course he roomed with G. H. Gould, in Holworthy 17. He was a member of the Institute of 1770 and the Hasty Pudding Club. Before leaving College, he had some idea of going into journalism; but, after graduation, went to New Orleans, and thence to Port Lemon, the terminus of the railroad in Costa Rica; was clerk for a few months in the office of the railroad, then went into the shipping trade, sending up goods from the islands of the Caribbean Sea; in this he was quite successful, until attacked by the Chagres fever, which obliged him to come North; he had apparently recovered from the fever at Stamford, and was just beginning the study of medicine with a physician in Stamford, when he was seized by his final illness, congestive chills, and some of the old fever; he died April 27, 1875. Action was taken by the Class on Commencement Day following; and resolutions passed, which were sent to his family, and may be seen in the Class Book.

FRANCIS MINOT WELD, Jr. Born at Jamaica Plain, Mass., July 21, 1851. Has been in active business since graduation, and at present is treasurer of the Newton Cotton Mills. Residence, Boston, Mass.

GEORGE WEBB WEST. Born at Salem, Mass., May 7, 1850. After graduation, went to Europe, and remained till the fall of 1874; since February, 1875, has been at the Harvard Medical School; has been appointed Surgical House Officer at the Massachusetts General Hospital for the coming year. Resides at Salem, Mass.

FRANK SUMNER WHEELER. Born at Keene, N. H., Oct. 25, 1849. For about two years after graduation, was in the office of the president of the Illinois Central Railroad, Chicago; was for some time in partnership with C. H. Dyer, in the coal business, at Chicago; on Jan. 1, 1877, went into the powder and commission business with our classmate, Cobb; on May 1, 1878, the firm became Cobb, Wills, & Wheeler. Resides at 297 Oak Street, Chicago.

MOSES PERKINS WHITE. Born at Freetown, Mass., Dec. 18, 1849. In the fall of 1872, was appointed a proctor in the College, and at the same time entered the Harvard Law School, where he remained a year, at the same time teaching a private pupil; the following year, he taught private pupils, and in the fall of 1874 re-entered the Law School, where he received the degree of LL.B. in June, 1875; then entered the law office of Hale, Walcott, & Perkins, Boston, where he remained a year as student; was admitted to the Massachusetts bar Nov. 1, 1875; in May, 1876, opened an office, and has since been practising law at Boston; on April 25, 1878, was married at Cambridge to Alice Maud Merrill, of Cambridge. Resides at present at Manchester, Mass.; after October, 1878, will reside at Cambridge.

* FRANCIS EUGENE WHITNEY. Was born Sept. 27, 1849, at Stow, Mass.; his father was Isaac Whitney, a farmer in that town; his mother's name before marriage was Marcia Jane Barclay. Whitney early discovered a taste for books and study; and at the age of fifteen, by the advice of S. W. Hale, a graduate of Harvard, went to Phillips Exeter Academy. He remained here four years, and then joined the class at the beginning of the Sophomore year. He roomed with White throughout his college course, at first in Stoughton 30, and for the last two years in Stoughton 10. He was a member of the Everett Athenæum and of the Π Η Society. In his college course, he devoted himself largely to the languages, having a particular fondness for Greek, and when graduated received honors in the classics. He also had a great love for music, to which he gave much time while in College. He left College with the idea of teaching or of going into business, but settled upon the former, and for a year held the position of master at De Veaux College, Suspension Bridge, N. Y., with great credit to himself, and winning by his kindness and courtesy the love and respect of both masters and students. At the end of the year, he determined to go abroad, hoping that he might improve his health, which had not been good since his Junior year in College. The voyage proved too severe; and he died of consumption soon after landing, at Torquay, England, Nov. 24, 1873, alone, and in the midst of strangers, who treated him kindly to the end. In memory of him, the masters and pupils of De Veaux erected a brass altar cross in their chapel, Whitsunday, 1874. Resolutions upon his death were passed by the Class, Commencement, 1874, which were sent to his mother, and can be seen in the Class Book.

GEORGE LOWELL AUSTIN. Born at Lawrence, Mass., Sept. 11, 1849. He writes as follows, June, 1878: "I left college at the close of the Junior year, 1871; was married in November of this year to Etta M. Perkins, of Cambridge, Mass.; from January, 1872, to January 1, 1873, edited the 'Folio,' a Boston musical journal, of extensive circulation, but not of much character. My instructions were to make it 'popular,' and I succeeded. After travelling abroad for some months in the following year, I settled down in Cambridge (present residence), with the sole object of leading a purely literary life; but I have varied this considerably, and have been studying medicine since 1875, and adopted it as my profession. Since the publication of the 'Second Class Report,' I have written and published 'History of Massachusetts,' 8vo, Boston, 1876; 'The Indispensable Handbook,' 12mo, Boston, 1878; also a large number of articles for the various magazines of the day. My 'Life of Canova' remains unpublished, the times not being favorable to its success." He is a member of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society, into which he was elected Sept. 6, 1876. He has three boys: Frederic Lowell Austin, born April 10, 1874; Edward Augustus Austin, born Aug. 9, 1875; and George Lowell Austin, Jr., born Jan. 25, 1878.

Left College at the end of the Freshman year; after a visit to Alabama, entered the office of his father, an architect, 18 Pemberton Square, Boston, Mass., where he has since remained, practising architecture, with the exception of a year and a half, from October, 1872, to May, 1874, which he spent in Paris, studying French and his profession. Resides at Longwood, Mass.

ARTHUR MILLS. Born at Boston, Mass., Nov. 17, 1850. Was married in January, 1872, to Jennie M. Barrett of Concord, Mass.; left College in April, 1872, to take a position in the freight office of the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad, at Plattsmouth, Neb.; Sept. 25, 1872, Charles Henry Mills was born, and on Dec. 12, 1873, a daughter, Eliza Barrett

Mills; in July, 1874, returned to Concord, Mass., and became agent of the "International Fast Freight Line," with his office at Boston; Feb. 1, 1877, he became General Freight Agent of the Boston, Clinton, Fitchburg, & New York R.R., with his office at Fitchburg, which position he still holds. Received his degree of A.B. in June, 1875. Resides at Concord, Mass.

EDWARD LUTHER PARKS. Born at Boston, Mass., May 14, 1849. Left College in the early part of 1871, and during that spring studied chemistry at the Lawrence Scientific School, preparatory to studying medicine; in September, 1871, began the study of medicine at Jefferson College, Philadelphia, and passed final examinations in June, 1873; received the degree of M.D. in March, 1874; during the summer of 1873, acted as assistant physician in the female department of the Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane, and as resident in the Philadelphia Hospital; in the fall and winter following, was sole resident physician in the Children's Hospital; in May, 1874, began practice for himself at 1323 Pine Street, Philadelphia, and remained there till the spring of 1876; during 1874 and 1875, was for some time assistant demonstrator of anatomy in the Philadelphia School of Anatomy, house surgeon in Wills' Eye Hospital, and assistant demonstrator of anatomy in Jefferson College; in the spring of 1875, became a member of the Pathological and Obstetrical Societies of Philadelphia, with the former of which he still keeps up his connection; during the three months following May 1, 1875, acted as the Surgeon to Out-Patients, Pennsylvania Hospital, and during the subsequent six weeks as Physician to Out-Patients at the same institution; for about three weeks in the summer, was in charge of the Philadelphia Dispensary for Skin Diseases; in the early part of the winter, was elected one of the District Physicians to the same Dispensary, and served as such till May, 1876; during the following summer, practised at Mattapoisett, Mass.; in January, 1877, visited England as Surgeon of the steamship "Minnesota;" June 7, 1877, was examined and admitted a Fellow of the Massachusetts Medical Society; in the summer of 1877, practised again at Mattapoisett; in the fall of 1877, went to Santa Barbara, Cal., where he has since remained. Just before going, he wrote to me: "Though I did not complete my college course, I hope to be a credit to the Class of '72, and wish to strengthen the bonds of friendship with its members." He writes as follows from Santa Barbara, April, 1878: "Soon after my arrival here, by the carelessness of a druggist, I swallowed a poisonous dose of belladonna. I was put quite out of mind, came near losing my life, and have had a hard struggle to regain strength of mind and body." He published an account of this in the "Boston Medical and Surgical Journal," April 25, 1878. He has also published some contributions to Vol. IV. of Transactions of the Pathological Society of Philadelphia; and "A Case of Softening of Brain," in the "Boston Medical and Surgical Journal," Nov. 8, 1877.

FRANK STAPLES SHERBURNE. Born at Charlestown, Mass., Jan. 14, 1850. Left College in October, 1871, and entered the Law School, where he remained a year; in July, 1872, sailed for Europe, and was abroad till June 16, 1874; went into business as book-keeper with his brother, E. C. Sherburne, in August, 1874, and in March, 1875, they formed a copartnership in the dry-goods commission business, at 14 Bedford Street, Boston; they continued together till April 31, 1877, when the firm was dissolved; since that date, has been in business with his father, R. Sherburne, Importer and Dealer in Plate and Window Glass; was married, Sept. 19, 1876, to A. C. Seavey, at Cambridge. Resides at 11 Mt. Vernon Street, Boston, Mass.

SAMUEL SINCLAIR, Jr. Born at New York City, Aug. 13, 1849. Left College at the end of the Junior year; was on the "New York Tribune" for some time; for some time a detective; and, when last heard of by the Secretary, had been successfully employed in Boston in negotiating loans from his former classmates.

WALTER ELIOT THWING. Born at Roxbury, Mass., April 27, 1848. Left College at the end of the Freshman year, and in December, 1870, sailed from New York on a journey round the world; was gone nearly two years, spending considerable time in China and Japan; soon after his return, entered the counting room of S. C. Thwing & Co., coal-dealers, as clerk and book-keeper. He writes, April, 1878, as follows: "My father died last year, and the successors of his firm are 'Thomas and Townsend.' I am with them as book-keeper and clerk still. I live now in Elm Street, Jamaica Plain. I am writing a history of the Thwing family, but it will be some time before I have it ready for publication. I am not married, nor engaged, consequently have no children at present. Your last report of me is correct, but altogether too short. On the 9th of January, 1878, I left for Kingston, Jamaica, to obtain a rest, and to get rid of a very severe cold. I reached home April 1st, thoroughly restored. I visted the Centennial Exhibition in October, 1876. While looking through the Japanese and Chinese Departments, I gave a great deal of information about those countries to inquiring ladies and gentlemen, who knew scarcely any thing about them."

CLASS SUBSCRIPTION-FUND.

This fund, it will be remembered, is entirely for the benefit of the College; and, as our Class Fund is sufficiently large to fulfil its purposes, those of the Class who have not already done so are invited to subscribe to the College Fund. The total amount pledged thus far is $4,725.00. We have already paid over to the trustees of the fund $2,387.90, considerably less than we should have paid, had all the subscriptions been paid promptly. The following account is from the time of the Second Report: —

REPORTS OF MEETINGS.

First Meeting, Sept. 14, 1872.

This meeting was held at the Parker House, Boston, to take action on the death of our classmate, James Page Richardson. It was called to order at 12 M. by the Secretary, who occupied the chair. Callender, Rand, and R. S. Hall were then appointed to prepare resolutions,* which were afterwards unanimously adopted; and, in accordance with one of them, were printed in the "Boston Daily Advertiser" and the "Portland Press," and a copy of them sent by the Secretary to the parents of the deceased.

Adjourned 12.45 P.M.

A. L. Lincoln, Jr., Secretary.

Second Meeting, June 25, 1873.

This meeting was held at Holworthy 14, and was called to order at 12.30 P.M. Gray was elected chairman.

The Secretary then read his report for the year, including the report of the meeting held Sept. 14, 1872, showing the condition of the Class funds, and giving such of the marriages as he had been able to hear of during the year, which was accepted.

The question was then raised as to what action should be taken upon the death of classmates; and, after some discussion, it was voted unanimously to adopt the following resolution, previously passed by the Class of 1870: —

Whereas, in the opinion of this meeting, the usual method of drawing up and publishing resolutions as a token of respect to the memory of classmates is not only unsatisfactory in itself, but poorly expresses the true sentiment of the Class, and is attended with an undesirable publicity, —

* These resolutions, and all others adopted on like occasions, can be seen, by any one so desiring, in the Class Book. — A. L. L.

Resolved, That, upon the death of any member of the Class, the Secretary shall be authorized to request one or more of the intimate friends of the deceased to draw up appropriate resolutions, which, with a short sketch of his life, shall be presented to the Class at its next regular meeting. On acceptance, a copy shall be sent to the family; but the usual plan of putting them into public print shall be dispensed with.

Adjourned.

A. L. Lincoln, Jr., Secretary.

Third Meeting, June 24, 1874.

This meeting was held at Holworthy 13, and was called to order at 11.30 A.M. Severance was elected chairman. The Secretary's report of the previous meeting was read and accepted, and also the report showing the condition of the Class funds. There had been two deaths in the Class during the year, — those of David Heald, Jr., and Francis Eugene Whitney. White, Rand, and A. W. Gould had been previously requested to draw up resolutions in respect to Whitney; and these, with a sketch of his life prepared by the Secretary, were submitted to the Class. The resolutions were unanimously adopted, and a copy afterwards sent to his mother.

Rand, White, and Hovey were then appointed to draw up resolutions to the memory of Heald, a sketch of whose life was also read by the Secretary. The resolutions were adopted as drawn, and a copy afterwards sent to Heald's family.

A report was also made by the Secretary of the action taken by him in regard to the Class Cradle, which was approved and accepted.
